If it's not Bass, it's not a Black and Tan.

From the British Empire to 21st century London, an authentic Black and Tan has always started with Bass Pale Ale.

Tucked beneath a blanket of your favourite stout is the ale with a lighter-than-expected finish. Linger on the caramel notes. Admire the incomparable chestnut-hued foundation and enjoy the final moments of the authentic black and tan.

Bass, the Original Pale Ale.

NEWS, TRUTH AND GOSSIP

By Chauncé Hayden

Send gossip to: Chaunce100@aol.com

ASSHOLE OF THE WEEK

New York Magazine said it best:

If chucking a water bottle at your personal assistant, then having to be physically restrained, then quitting on-air doesn't get you fired from Sirius radio, then what does?

Good question.

On April 10th, Howard Stern's morbidly obese sidekick Artie Lange shocked even Howard when he physically attacked his timid personal assistant, Teddy Knuetter, while the show was being broadcast live on Sirius. During the assault (which began after Stern prodded Lange to vent about an off-air squabble with Teddy) Lange showed his true homophobe colors, calling his young assistant "a fag" before lunging at the much smaller male secretary, who apparently also works the sound board during Stern's "Wrap Up" show.

It took six staffers to restrain Lange, who admitted he was going to kill Teddy because he thought he was stealing money from him. However, at the start of this past Monday's show, Lange, a former heroin addict, confessed that his physically abused assistant never stole any money from him and that he was sorry for what he did.

This is the second time Lange has attacked a Stern staff member. Several months ago, Lange also went after (another much smaller staffer) Sal "The Stockbroker" Governale in the same ugly on-air fashion.

It's odd that Lange never seems to attack anyone who might actually put up a fight. Let me just say on the record, if that drunken fat load of shit Artie Lange ever came after me with that same violent rage, I wouldn't stop punching him until one of us was dead. I hate bullies...especially bloated slobs who think they're bad-asses because they have no ability to stop stuffing their mouths with pasta.

ON A SIDE NOTE: It's also worth noting that former gossip guy A.J. Benza was banned from the Howard Stern Show for attacking Stuttering John during a live broadcast. One has to wonder if Artie Lange has something over Howard Stern that he doesn't want the world to know. Hmmm...

Dirty Tables Anyone?

Why do customers feel the need to sit at a dirty table? The only dirty table in the ENTIRE restaurant! What is it about this table that beckons you to sit there? Is it the dirty beer stained pints or the sticky red ketchup stains on the filthy plates? Or is it the fact that you are so deprived of happiness that you actually get joy off of your indecency? The table also turns out to be the most annoying table of the whole shift.

I had a table of French Canadians, who are notoriously known for not tipping, do this to me the other day. They asked me with their thick snobby French accents if I could wipe off the table. I wanted to ask them in my thick American accent if they could actually sit at a clean table. I didn't. Instead, I said sure. I walked maybe around five feet away from them, threw my waiter book, kicked the wall and yelled, "SURE, I WOULD LOVE TO CLEAN OFF THE ONLY DIRTY TABLE IN THE ENTIRE RESTAURANT SO THAT SOME CHEAP FRENCH CANADIANS CAN SIT AND NOT TIP ME FOR MY SERVICES!"

As you can probably guess, I was up to my ears in shit from customers that day and I was at my wits' end. Thank goodness for awesome allies at my restaurant, because the bartender, after cracking up at what she just witnessed, gladly took the table for me.

Luckily for me, we were sans manager that evening and if these Frenchie poos did decide to complain, no one would believe them. Why? Because it sounds absolutely ridiculous that anyone would do that and also it helps to be sweet as pie when you are around your superiors. The customers aren't "always" right.

I love it when people ask if we have something that's NOT listed on the menu. This isn't your personal kitchen. The real kicker is when that same customer gets angry that you don't have what they want. Why did they even enter the restaurant? They sure did stare at the outside menu for a good five minutes.

24 SEVEN

By Dan Lorenzo

How beautiful was last week's weather? I can't understand why anybody with real money would spend one minute in NYC/NJ in the winter. If somebody would just hand me about 3 million dollars, I promise you would never see me up here again from November 1st until mid April.

Last week I played hoops outside four times. I probably play against over a hundred different people a year with all different levels of skills. Last Thursday I was guarding some white guy who was two years older than I am. I can usually hold my own on defense, but was having a real tough time against this guy I had never played before. His name is Jack Ryan. After 3 games I asked Jack what he does for a living. Jack told me he plays basketball. Jack has a DVD coming out soon called Release. In it, Peter Vescey from the New York Post calls Jack "One of the biggest wastes of talent in the history of basketball." Jack is an NYC playground legend, got a full scholarship to college, but had a drinking problem that prevented him from ever playing in the NBA. When I was guarding Jack he was doing things with the basketball that looked like trick photography. Check out his amazing website www.hoopwizard.com

One of the coolest things that has ever happened to me as a result of this column happened years ago. An up and coming comedian named Jim Florentine mailed me a package with his first cd, Terrorizing Telemarketers, with a letter saying he was a fan of my column. Jim hit the big time a few years later and you can read my interview with him in this week's issue. Jim's new CD is called Anger is a Gift. He told me the title is from Rage Against The Machine's song "Freedom". "I always loved that song when it stops and he just whispers," "Anger is a Gift". It's kind of like, my anger is my gift to comedy." Jim soon heads off to Iraq to entertain the troops. I asked Jim if he was afraid to go, he said, "I'm doing it for the frequent flyer miles, I need to hit platinum this year." Now go read my interview.

WE ARE THE CHAMPIONS (OF STYLE)

Not everyone is a winner, but with the proper accessories at least we can all look like champions. Case in point: These adorable satin ribbons from Jessica Grindstaff, which you can pretend you won at the county fair for having the largest sow, or claim that the fashion patrol just happened to be wandering by and gave you top style honors. The oversize ribbon is over four inches wide with a seven inch tail, and is available in three colors: Silver with a silver bee accent (shown), lavender with a silver jaguar (shown), or seafoam green with a gold lion. These unusual pins are a whimsical addition to denim jackets, cute cardigans, or to jazz up your carry-all. Spring's must-have style ornament sells for $132 at www.ravinstyle.com.

SOLVING THE MUFFIN TOP MYSTERY

Even though high-rise jeans continue to make headway in the denim world, many women still like to wear their jeans low on their hips. Nothing wrong with that, since it is a sexier, more casual look...as long as you don't suffer from the dreaded "muffin top". We're all seen it, and it can even happen to gals with gorgeous figures. This fashion no-no occurs when feminine hips spill out over the top of the jeans' waistband, which makes that area of their body resemble a muffin top. Blue Tattoo is a denim line created by Jim and Maria Shaffer, a California couple who claim to have resolved this dilemma with their invention. Blue Tattoo jeans are meant to work with women's curves, and utilize a specially-designed contoured waistline and saddle back. And while most jeans have some degree of stretch, BT denim is made of a special two-way stretch material that accommodates the wearer's width and length. Cool jeans that actually fit? What a revolutionary concept! The jeans pictured are available at www.blueroofdenim.com for $184.

PURE SKIN FROM A PILL

Several weeks ago I read an article about vitamins being the ultimate beauty tool, and how many companies create formulas specifically targeted to different areas of the body. One such product piqued my interest: Pure Skin Supplement capsules from the well-known skin care line Murad. I have used Murad cleansers and moisturizers before, and they have always been good to my skin. So I decided to give this product a try. The rather large pills are meant to be taken two at a time twice a day, and Murad claims that results are noticeable after six weeks. The combination of Vitamin A, zinc, and other components are meant to reduce breakouts and redness. So what did my independent test, using myself as guinea pig, prove? Although somewhat skeptical, I must admit I have not had a single blemish since I started taking Murad's pills, and my complexion looks smooth, clear, and healthy. I think it's well worth $42 for the monthly supply. You can buy them at www.sephora.com.

Chelsea Handler Comes Clean

Interview by Chaunce Hayden

Former New Jersey beauty queen Chelsea Handler has graduated from blonde stunner to blonde f--king-funny-as-hell stunner. As one of the nation's fastest-rising female stand-ups, blending fearless honesty, ironic riffs and self-deprecation, Handler has performed before sold-out audiences around the world. Last March, her first half-hour stand-up special on Comedy Central was one of the network's biggest hits. Handler became a household name as star of Oxygen's Girls Behaving Badly—now syndicated in more than 90 markets—for all of its four seasons, and starred in The Chelsea Handler Show on E! She has co-starred in several independent films, including Steamroom and National Lampoon's Cattle Call, and has made guest appearances on Comedy Central's Reno 911!, ABC's My Wife and Kids, Fox's The Bernie Mac Show and David E. Kelley's The Practice. You might also know Handler for her work as a correspondent on The Tonight Show with Jay Leno. Chelsea's first book, My Horizontal Life: A Collection of One-Night Stands, a brutally honest look at her life, has been followed up by her latest book, Are You There, Vodka? It's Me, Chelsea. Warning: in between loud outbursts of laugher you might also be very offended. Case in point...I'm still getting over Handler's opinion of redheads. Errrrr.

Chaunce Hayden: You're hilarious but I do have one bone to pick with you. In your new book, "Are You There, Vodka? It's Me, Chelsea," you trash guys with red hair. Um...I have red hair.

Chelsea Handler: Oh my God. So what are you going to do about it?

Nothing. What is that supposed to mean?

Well, you can get rid of your red hair and then you won't take offense to redheaded comments anymore. You can go to the drug store and get dye.

Do you think every woman hates guys with red hair, or is this more of a personal thing with you?

It's just my own opinion. Don't take everything I say to heart. I'm sure there are other women out there who are just dying to hook up with a guy with a big red head. It's like having a little person fetish. Hey, at least you don't have curly red hair. That would even be worse! Look at Carrot Top.

Are you always so opinionated?

After I wrote my first book ("My Horizontal Life: A Collection of One Night Stands") it just kind of set it up for me to be open and honest. I was so open and honest in that book that I couldn't really go back. Plus, the more open and honest you are, the less people can say about you. It's not that I'm pretending to be something I'm not. As far as standup comedians go, people respond more to you when you're honest about yourself and others.

Even if it's hurtful?

There are times when I can border on being mean. So I try to focus on the funny more than the mean. If it's too mean I'll try and lay off of it.

Let's talk about the title of your new book, "Are You There, Vodka? It's Me, Chelsea." What does vodka do for you?

Vodka makes me sane.

Do you think you have a drinking problem?

No. I might have said that in jest. But it's not like I've ever been to rehab. I love to drink! Drinking has never been a problem for me. Vodka and I seem to get along very well.

But you were arrested for a DUI when you were in your early twenties. Some might say, maybe you're in denial.

I'm 33 now. I had the DUI when I was 21, so I don't think it's that big a deal. Besides, getting a DUI doesn't mean you have a drinking problem. It just means you have a problem when you drink and drive. Sure, I have my fair share of cocktails. But everybody has a different definition of what is a drinking problem. I'm sure lots of people think I have a drinking problem. But I don't.

Almost everyone has driven drunk at one point in their life. Is it just a matter of who gets caught and who doesn't?

Yeah, it's just a matter of getting caught. For me, I'm glad I got caught. Because going to DUI school is the reason I discovered I wanted to do standup comedy. I had to do a speech at the end of the class and I had everybody dying laughing. I thought, "Oh, this is fun!" Plus, once you get a DUI, you're not likely to get another one unless you're an asshole. It's like when you go to rehab. I won't make fun of you the first time. But the second time, all bets are off.

Why do so many celebrities keep going back to rehab? Is it that much fun or are they assholes?

I don't know. It obviously doesn't work. Nobody comes out of rehab better. If they're doing it for the press it's pretty pathetic. There are other more respectable ways to get attention, like putting out a sex tape.

"I'm always making fun of Tori Spelling. I really don't believe she's a woman... Let me just say on the record that technically I believe Tori Spelling is a female. I just can't be positive."

Have you ever taped yourself having sex?

Yes.

Where is that tape now?

I have no idea. I think we may have erased it. But there's always the possibility that it's still floating around. I was 21 when we made it.

You were a lot of fun at 21. I never understand the concept of wanting to tape yourself having sex. Can you explain it to me?

I don't understand it either! I was telling my boyfriend while we were taping ourselves, "Why are we doing this? This is so stupid!" I remember looking at the camera while we were having sex and saying, "(Sarcastically) Oh, this is so amazing!" Actually, if the tape ever came out, I think it would be really funny.

In your book you talk about the first time you saw a penis. Can you relive that moment for me?

In my standup act I do a 15-minute bit about men's balls and why nobody ever told us women about them. I'm shocked at how f—cking disgusting they are! It took me a long time to get used to them.

Let's talk about your boyfriend, Ted Harbert, who also happens to be the President and CEO of Comcast Entertainment Group, which oversees E! Entertainment Television. In other words, your boss. Playing the devil's advocate, what would you say to anyone who has the idea that you got your job on E! because of who your boyfriend happens to be?

I was working at E! before he was the president there. We started to develop "The Chelsea Handler Show" after he got there, but he didn't become my boyfriend until the wrap party. My new show, "Chelsea Lately," was already in development before we started to see each other. Of course he green lighted it right away.

Hmmmm. Suspicious.

That's not really how things work anymore. It's not like we're in 1950's Hollywood. If my show didn't have good ratings it wouldn't be on the air. Yes, he's a fan of mine and he thinks I have talent, but if your show doesn't get good ratings it won't stay on the air. The advertisers won't stand for it and his bosses won't stand for it.

What is it like dating a man who is 20 years older than you?

He's really young at heart. He's really fun and we have a great time together. He's also much more mature than guys my age who might be intimidated by a female comedian. He gets it.

What is sex like with a 52-year-old man?

We have great sex! It's better with somebody older because they know what they're doing. All older men are better in bed as long as they can still perform.

What separates your E! show from Leno or Letterman?

My show has a roundtable with three people on every night. We talk about and make fun of the current news stories. Sometimes I'll do an interview or we might even play a game. The format is different every night. You never know what's going to happen. Also, my show is only a half hour so it's much more fast-paced. Plus, it's on E!, so we can get away with a lot more than Leno or Letterman.

Ever have a celebrity pissed off at you for something you said on your show?

Yeah. I'm always making fun of Tori Spelling. I really don't believe she's a woman. Now we both have the same publisher and I hear she's very upset with me for calling her a man. Let me just say on the record that technically I believe Tori Spelling is a female. I just can't be positive.

Is it easier to be a female comic or a male comic?

I think it's easier to be a female comic. People are looking for female comics right now. The guy comics have been really nice to me and as long as you don't get involved with another comic sexually, I think you're good to go.

What's the best celebrity news story in the past few weeks?

I'm so sick of Paris Hilton and Britney Spears. That's why I'm so glad the Eliot Spitzer sex scandal happened. As sad as it is for his wife, it makes for really good television.

Would you stay with a man who went to a hooker while you were together?

I don't know what I would do until I was in that situation. I wouldn't mind if I was there while the hooker was there. But if it happened while I wasn't in attendance I might be a little pissed off.

Is it true Steven Spielberg fired you from a Fox show called "On the Lot"?

No, I didn't get fired. I got out of that because I was starting my E! show and I just felt that it was too much work for me. Plus, it wasn't really the show I thought it would be. But it wasn't anything traumatic.

Is there anything personal you want to tell me about yourself that I should know?

I have two adopted children. One is from Zimbabwe and one is from Tanzania. I call both of them Earl. I really do! I haven't spoken to them in a couple of months but I'm planning on sending them some bicycles.

Finally, do you want to use this time to apologize to all the little people who you might have offended in the past?

I'm getting rid of the word "midget" and I'm replacing it with "little nuggets." Because midget is not politically correct. So they can send me thank-you cards to my MySpace account.

Would you sleep with a "little nugget"?

No. But if you find a woman who has that fantasy, please have her contact me.

MORSELS

By Mike Morse

Hillary vs. Obama. As their battle for the presidential nomination becomes increasingly heated, both of these Democratic candidates risk alienating voters with their bickering. How can we decide on a clear frontrunner between these two strong and charismatic figures? That was the question posed to me by a high-ranking official of the Democratic National Committee.* (*Having been asked this question while drunk in a bar in Jersey City at 1:30 in the morning by a foul-smelling guy in a leather jacket, I'm now thinking I might have imagined the "high-ranking official of the DNC" part.) Well, I put my mind to the task and came up with a few ways we could make our decision: THE BEATDOWN IN THE BELTWAY. How about a steel cage Ultimate Fighting-style brawl between the two contenders? Two nominees walk in, one walks out. In this corner, wearing a conservative gray suit, Barack "Yo Mama" Obama! And in this corner, wearing the same look of barely concealed fury she's had since Obama took the lead in delegates, Hillary "I'm Gonna Beat You Like You're a Fat Female White House Intern" Clinton! This would be a close match. While Barack has her on height, youth and fitness, Hillary comes out on top in weight and the desire to kill. Or maybe PRESIDENTIAL SNAPS, a less violent way to have the two frontrunners face off for supremacy. In an MTV studio, with Ashton Kutcher as host, they would take turns insulting each other until one either gives up or can't think of a comeback. Example: Hillary: "Barack, your minister hates America so much, he wipes his ass with apple pie." Barack: "Hillary, your husband is so horny, your local bakery had to stop putting holes in their donuts." Snap! Then there's THE PRESIDENTIAL NOMINEE WITH TWO HEADS. There's an old horror movie from the '70s in which Ray Milland had his severed head sewn onto Rosie Grier's body, right next to Rosie's head. Why not try this surgery with Hillary and Obama? Sewn together, they would be an unstoppable candidate: A black/white, young/old, Washington outsider/insider, passive/aggressive, thoughtful/impulsive man/woman. And I'm sure Bill Clinton will be a fan of the procedure, because it will ensure him a foursome in bed. Lastly, ME FOR PRESIDENT. Hey, while these two bozos are slugging it out with each other, why not just vote for me? If I can come up with fantastic ideas like these for a stupid humor column, imagine the great ideas I could come up with as president!

"FORGETTING SARAH MARSHALL"

"88 MINUTES"

Dr. Jack Gramm (Al Pacino) is a college professor who moonlights as a forensic psychiatrist for the FBI. When Gramm receives a death threat claiming he has only 88 minutes to live, he must use all his skills and training to narrow down the possible suspects, who include a disgruntled student, a jilted former lover, and a serial killer who is already on death row, before his time runs out. Cast: Al Pacino, Alicia Witt, Leelee Sobieski, Neal McDonough, Benjamin McKenzie, Amy Brenneman, Deborah Kara Unger, William Forsythe. 1 hour, 48 minutes. Rated R. ★★

Well, it finally feels like Spring! As a result, there are some refreshing new brews out there that really hit the spot when you're feeling the heat. Anheuser-Busch is carrying three such thirst quenchers and I must admit I was very impressed by all of them. Not being a regular Bud or Bud Light drinker, I was a bit skeptical about tasting their brand new Bud Light Lime that is made at A-B's Baldwinsville, Fort Collins and Carterville breweries. This beer will be available nationwide as of this coming Monday, April 28. Billed as a premium, American-style light lager with a splash and taste of 100-percent natural lime, this beer is my current new fave. It will be available in 12-ounce, clear glass bottles, 22-ounce single serve bottles or in 16-ounce aluminum bottles. What I like about it is the clean and crisp finish as well as the lime flavor, which is not overbearing but rather just sweet enough to satisfy. So after years of not drinking Bud, I guess the A-B folks have finally won me over.

If you do not like the whole lime thing (yes, I mean you, you fruit-hating, frustrated Corona drinkers), you must try the newest lager on the beach—Land Shark. Lacking the slight sting that Corona can offer, Land Shark is a smooth brew that really steps things up in this category. While I realize it is a lager, its fresh flavor can't help but remind me of Corona. If you do like limes you can of course always stick one in there!

Lastly, I give you Blue Dawg Brewing's Wild Blue Blueberry Lager, which actually infuses all-natural blueberry syrup made from real blueberries into your brew. Yeah, I know, it sounds bizarre—but I love this stuff! The people I had taste-test it were split down the middle when it came to their opinions, but if you like a buzz that comes on quick and sports a sweet, smooth taste plus a ripe blueberry aroma, Wild Blue's eight percent alcohol by volume rating should do the trick. Yeah, eight percent—this stuff is no joke. In the words of Jill Vaughn, Wild Blue brewmaster, "With a distinct color and flavor, we've crafted a beer that truly stands out. I think it will surprise people, especially those who like to experiment when it comes to new drinks." That last bit is important to note because it may not be right for people like my horseshoe team buddies, whom I will soon be reconvening with again for the season. Some of them routinely bust my chops about the new and unusual beers I bring to our matches. However, if you think that Wild Blue is too strange to try, keep in mind that brewers have been using fruit in beer for years. From Belgian lambics brewed with raspberries, cherries and peaches to fruit-flavored beer mixers like shandys and radlers—popular concoctions in Britain and Germany created to bring more refreshment to beer during the spring and summer months—this is not new territory by any means. Also, craft beer enthusiasts gave Wild Blue their stamp of approval with a gold medal in the fruit beer category at the North American Brewers Association's 2006 North American Beer Awards, so that does not suck! You may want to use Cinco de Mayo—since it is right around the corner—as an excuse to try out these new brands. For more info, surf to: www.anheuser-busch.com. Enjoy!

RIDE-STUFF

Motorcycles are everywhere, and if you have not noticed that over the past week or so you clearly have not left your house. It's kind of ironic that what is mainly driving riders I've spoken with to get out there on two wheels is not just the nice weather, but the price of gas. That factor seems to be turning the occasional weekend rider, as well as non riders, into transportation riders.

I have always championed the cause of commuting on your bike for a multitude of reasons. Less wear and tear on the roadways, less traffic congestion, reduced emissions, the adrenalized alertness it offers once you walk into the office, and the list goes on…But it is the gas mileage that has had this current effect on the riding landscape. I couldn't care less what it is that drives people to throw a leg over a moto, but when I see the items I just listed realized, it is a wonderful thing. Perhaps the age of the transportation rider has come at last, and personally I welcome the company on the open road. For those that are just entering the moto-world, the time could not be better in terms of reliability, variety and functionality of motorcycles. Pretty much all the manufacturers are putting quality product out there and all you have to do is choose the one that best fits your needs. Be sure you take an MSF riding course to learn some important techniques, and do yourself another favor by buying quality riding gear. That stuff may save your life, or at least a lot of pain and medical expense down the road. This increasing moto-popularity permeates all facets of life. Case in point, when I went to Studio AllZone in Roselle, NJ, to judge a recent bikini contest, there at centerstage was a race-ready Suzuki Gixxer. This bike belonged to Mark O' Connor from Absolute Cycle in Linden, NJ, and had about $10,000 of aftermarket stuff on it (nothing as sweet looking, though, as the girls that had their pictures taken astride the beast!). Seriously, though, Absolute Cycle does tons of custom work to all kinds of bikes, but what grabbed my attention was the track days that they host. I feel ashamed to admit that having ridden on the street for nearly 25 years now, I have never done a track day. I know I will one day, but if you want to get in on one, contact these guys at 877.382.9800. You will get a lot more seat time than usual and be among cool, like-minded people according to Mark. Learn more at www.absolutecycle.com.

JIM FLORENTINE

By Dan Lorenzo

Jim Florentine is a funny guy. Perhaps that is why he's a comedian. I first heard of Jim many years ago when he mailed me his CD, Terrorizing Telemarketers. It was brilliant. More CDs followed, then Jim's voice was heard on Comedy Central's Crank Yankers. Jim's character "Special Ed" achieved cult-like popularity which meant more visibility and more touring for his standup act. Jim was being asked to make prank phone calls with Eminem, he became a regular on Inside the NFL on HBO and could often be heard on The Howard Stern Show.

Just after Christmas 2006, tragedy hit. Jim's "on again, off again" girlfriend Jade took her own life. Jim had already lost his buddy, former Pantera guitarist Dimebag Darrell, who was murdered onstage while performing with his band Damageplan. Jim had opened many shows for Damageplan. Fortunately, my man Jim is a survivor. He's now dating Stern show sidekick Robin Quivers and he has a killer new CD of his standup act out called Anger Is a Gift.

Dan Lorenzo: When you and Jim Norton lived together did you ever dream you would both "make it"?

Jim Florentine: No. We didn't go the traditional route of "how to get further along in your career" because we were both edgy, dirty comics. To do that kind of stuff you really have to go around the business, but even when we didn't have any money, we were still having a blast, even if we were working (doing standup) at a firehouse in New Jersey. To us, we "made it" just by making a living at what we loved doing.

With fame comes money…you have real money, but I don't think I know anyone with less interest in the things money can buy than you. Do you agree?

I just got in my 2000 Honda Accord.

I know, what's up with that?

Money never mattered to me. I never had any, so it didn't make a difference. What made me happy when I was an 18- or 19-year-old kid and I got my paycheck on Friday, I'd go down to the record store and buy the newest Motörhead or Saxon record. That made me happy. Me buying a $2,000 piece of jewelry isn't going to do anything for me. I'd rather help my friends out if they need money.

And you consider me a friend, right?

We'll see. We'll see when this interview comes out if we're friends or not. I'd rather help a friend or family member who needs some money than drive around in a Range Rover with wheels that spin so everybody could look at me.

That sounds like you're a nice guy or something.

No, it's not being a nice guy. It's like, do I want people who don't even know me, saying, "Wow, look at that guy—he must have money." Like…who cares? I don't know those people, what does it make a difference?

On your new CD, you claim couples would get along better if they didn't do things together. Is that the angry comedian talking or do you really feel that way?

In most cases, yes, because…in your case, with your wife, you guys like hanging out with each other and you guys have a lot in common. Most couples don't. What happens is they force each other to go to places they don't want to be, and that's where the resentment starts in the relationship. But don't you think that's because most people settle? They just marry the first person who will take them as opposed to waiting for the right one to come along?

Absolutely, you hear people say, "I'm going to be married by the time I'm 30," so they just find somebody, they definitely do without a doubt. I'd say like 80 percent just kind of settle on somebody. But, you bring your chick to a sports bar to watch football and she's miserable, so she just holds it against you, or she brings you out shopping and you're miserable. The resentment just builds from there. If my chick wasn't into watching sports at a sports bar, I wouldn't drag her there. She's not going to have a good time, so why would I do that to her? You don't need to be around each other 24 hours a day.

You're always goofing on fat people. Is that uncomfortable to do when you look out at your audience and you see somebody who is heavy?

Usually they can't hear my jokes because they're too busy chewing.

Do you ever change your act based on who might be in the audience?

No. I don't change it, I'm just like, "whatever." I make fun of everybody, so I don't really worry about it. Maybe if there are kids in the audience…but if you're an adult, too bad.

I was looking at your website today, and I see you're in Iowa next week. Every time I think of you on tour, I think of you alone…I was bored on tour even when I was surrounded by bandmates and roadies. What do you do all day, and do you get lonely?

I took a friend of mine out on tour with me, this guy Tony that I've known since the first grade, actually I took him to Rocklahoma, and we're in the hotel during the day until the show starts and he's like, "Dude, how do you live like this?" I'm like, "What? It's fucking cool." To me, when I'm on the road, there are no phones ringing, there are no disturbances and I can get some writing done. I can take a nap, I'll go work out, I'll go check out a movie, so to me it's like getting away. When I'm home, I'm constantly at appointments and meeting and auditions and stuff.

Your ex-girlfriend Jade was Vietnamese and Robin is an African American. What do you have against white girls?

And the one before that was Spanish! I lived in West New York, she had to be Spanish. I'm an equal opportunity dater. I grew up in an all-white Jewish neighborhood, so I never saw any ethnic women before.

Tell me about dating Robin Quivers.

I asked her out on the air, on a date 'cause she said she wasn't dating anybody and I wasn't and I didn't think she was going to say yes, but she did. We hit it off and she's really cool.

And you guys are exclusive now?

Yeah, we're exclusively dating, yeah. We don't get to see each other that much because I'm traveling, she's working, and we have two different schedules, but when we hang we have a good time. Look, the 20-year-old hot chicks look great and their bodies are amazing, but there is something about a woman that's independent and knows what she wants and stuff like that. She's not like a needy little girl. This new generation of women are just so damn needy, I think that they have daddy issues where they like an older guy who's going to take care of them, and they're just fucking annoying. They're sending you 75 text messages, 30 MySpace's, you know what I mean? You leave their place and then two seconds later they're calling you on your cell phone, "Where are you at?" I'm like, "I'm in the fucking driveway!" "Can you call me when you get to the traffic light?" "For what?" Me and Robin talk once a day, at the end of the day. It's perfect, there's no, "I haven't heard from you in an hour, what's going on?" None of that bullshit, none of that "Who's the girl on the MySpace page who sent you a comment that she loved your show in Iowa?" There is none of that, and it's so refreshing.

One reason I can't picture you and Robin together is because I imagine her waking up for work at four in the morning, and you getting home from a strip club at four in the morning.

No, I don't really hang out at strip clubs, although I was at the Clubhouse (owned by Vinnie Paul and his brother Dimebag Darrell from Pantera) in Dallas this past weekend.

Have you spoken with Rita (Dimebag's girlfriend at the time of his murder), seeing as you two both suffered losses in recent years?

It was weird because we've seen each other over the last year and a half…we didn't get too in depth about it, but when I saw her Sunday night, we talked for about two hours and we were both crying. So we're going to talk on the phone and try and help each other get through it. It's funny that you ask that because we really just sat down together for the first time. I felt bad for her because when she said, "If Phil (Anselmo) didn't leave Pantera, Dimebag wouldn't have been at that club" (the night he was murdered). I felt she probably misspoke, but I can't imagine the pain she must be in.

She said it was like an hour interview, a 10-page interview and they just took that one clip out of there, she said people didn't see what was said before and after, not that she got misquoted, but when you're talking out loud and you still got…you're still grieving, things like that are going to come out. I still say things that I shouldn't say about certain people after what happened about my situation. You miss the person so much, you're reaching for something…why did it happen? There are just so many unanswered questions. In the grieving process you go through sadness, anger, guilt, blame and all that stuff. So that's just one of her days where she was probably just having a bad day.

SEE DESE REVIEW

Mariah Carey "E=MC²"

ISLAND

The 11th studio album of her career, E=MC² is the follow-up to The Emancipation Of Mimi, Mariah Carey's worldwide 10 million selling No. 1 album, which generated three Grammy awards (including Best Contemporary R&B Album), two No. 1 singles and countless more industry honors during its 18-month stay on the charts. E=MC² finds Carey stacking the deck with the hottest producers and guest artists in urban music (Jermaine Dupri, StarGate, T-Pain, Damian Marley, Young Jeezy).

[illegible] "Touch My Body" - An ultra-girly luxury cushion of a track, all tactile bass bumps and tinkling music box motifs. On the glorious disco bounce of "O.O.C.," she breaks into Italian, Spanish and French in the space of one verse for no discernible reason other than that she can. The sweet, gliding "I'm That Chick" hitches itself to R&B's current vogue for 4/4 beats. "Migrate" - A funky, self-referential jam, charts the flight patterns of your modern, fabulously talented urban diva with computer-processed vocals from the unshakable T-Pain. Carey suffers from a major love hangover on "Side Effects," a synthy cautionary tale about an abusive relationship. Kissing off an ex-lover has never sounded so divinely ordained as on "I Wish You Well," where Carey quotes biblical chapter and verse.

[illegible] "Cruise Control" - Carey croons over Jermaine Dupri's skittering reggae track in a Caribbean-tinged patois. On "I'll Be Lovin' U Long Time, she layers her voice into a swooning bank of a hundred Mariah's. "Bye Bye" - A lighters-and-hands-in-the-air tribute to deceased loved ones.

[illegible] A couple come close.

[illegible] E=MC² is a largely enjoyable mix of flirtatious club jams, midtempo love songs, and emotional ballads anchored by hip-hop beats that handsomely showcase Mariah Carey's powerful vocal chops.

ANTHRAX

Metal legends Anthrax have announced a short spring tour, kicking off with a warmup club show at Chicago's Double Door on May 28. The Chicago warm-up show will be the band's first live performance with their new singer Dan Nelson. In addition to the band's classic hits from their 25 year career, Anthrax will for the first time ever perform brand new material from their current writing sessions. After the warm-up show, Anthrax will then fly to Los Angeles and join Iron Maiden on their "Somewhere Back In Time" world tour. Anthrax is direct supporting Iron Maiden at the May 30 and 31 shows at Irvine, CA's Verizon Wireless Amphitheater.

FOXY BROWN ON HER PRISON STAY

Foxy Brown, after being released on Friday, gave her first ex-con interview to MTV from the back of the white Bentley that came to pick her up from jail. She said life at Rikers Island was a life-changing experience for her: "I have a whole newfound respect for my freedom. Little things I would take for granted...like a Snickers bar...It's an incredible feeling. I feel really good." Foxy said that her first priority was to get to church: "I really, really want to go to church first and get it right with God. It's only through His grace that I was able to survive this, and I want to get down on my knees and thank Him." Brown's new religious faith doesn't prevent her harsh feelings about her 241 day imprisonment. "I did not deserve a sentence that harsh," she told MTV.

VELVET REVOLVER SEEK SINGER

Velvet Revolver are to hold auditions online in a bid to find a replacement singer for Scott Weiland. Slash has revealed. The former Stone Temple Pilots frontman exited the band acrimoniously earlier this month, prompting a series of public outbursts between members. However, the group's iconic guitarist has now confirmed they intend to continue without Weiland and will also play an upcoming gig in Las Vegas with some guest singers. He said: "The band is actually talking about building a website (and) doing some auditions via that, so that's been something that's developing at this point. We're at that point of just listening to different things...it's one of those kind of situations where you can't really explain it to anybody because you'll know it when you hear it. So I'm waiting to get that feeling of, 'Yeah that's it,'" explained the former Guns N' Roses member.

KELLY CLARKSON PERFORMS FOR THE POPE

[illegible] that dream come true on such a special occasion is truly a blessing."

JUSTIN FURTHERS GOLF DREAM

Justin Timberlake has signed with leading sports and entertainment company IMG as he attempts to develop an eco-friendly golf course in his native Memphis, Tennessee. IMG bosses will represent all the pop star's golf-related projects. The singer is also developing his own charity golf tournament to aid America's Shriners Children's Hospitals.

BRITNEY SPEARS RETURN TO TV SOON

[illegible] gave "How I Met Your Mother" its highest ratings ever when she appeared as a lovestruck secretary in an episode on March 24, and now she had agreed to reprise her character, according to reports. A source says, "The show is ecstatic and so is Britney. She had so much fun the first time around she really wanted to come back. It was a mutual decision to work together more." The one-episode deal comes just days after Spears' former manager Larry Rudolph admitted the singer loved appearing on the show and talked constantly about it during recent meetings with him. He said, "It was a really positive experience for her. She talked about it quite a bit the last time I saw her... She wants to do it again."

Steppin' Out Under the Stars

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) If you're normally timid the influences around now will do you the world of good. You suddenly find the courage to try things which normally you would not attempt.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) You need to take a few risks as the influences around shake your life up a bit. They give you a chance to see that life has broader horizons. Watch for a tiny hint of over-confidence.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) You have a sense of idealism, wanting to put your energy into your visions to make them work better for yourself. You will move nearer to accomplishing your goals.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) You will be in high spirits, feeling full of vitality and good health. Everyone around will be more than happy to move your way.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) Although you will be slightly reckless, it's not likely to send you flying off into anything too foolish. The only danger is that you may be moving so fast that you forget to pay attention to the practical details.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) Anyone who tries to push you around is going to be told exactly what you think of them. This is a time to stand up for yourself.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) You should be able to advance anything you have been focusing strongly on now. You have the optimism to make it happen. Just remember to take your time about what you hope to accomplish.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) Your motivation is being directed towards developing your potential. You need to set your goals then work out practical steps for achieving them.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) Don't believe all your dreams can come true instantly, or take your fantasies too literally. Be satisfied with what is possible, and what with a little effort can be made solid.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) Everything will feel a little more entertaining than usual. Your intuition is pointing you in just the right direction. Put your energy in exactly the right place at the right time.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) There are good opportunities around where cash or work matters are concerned. But don't gamble or take unnecessary risks.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) You want to get off the beaten track to find a bit more excitement. The key is to do that without causing serious disruption in your life. Try a little morale-boosting of the people around you.

'MLB 2K8' isn't quite ready for the majors

Game: "MLB 2K8"
Publisher: 2K Sports
System: Xbox 360 & PS3
Cost: $60
Rating: Everyone
Review Rating: ★ ★ ★

Throughout gaming history, sports titles have been as prolific as the action genre. That is, until the major leagues decided to sell exclusive rights regarding the creation of official sports games. So the companies that own these rights now do little more than add a few bells and whistles for each new season due to a lack of competition. EA does it with the Madden series, and 2K Sports has followed suit with its latest baseball title, "MLB 2K8."

Don't get me wrong - "MLB 2K8" is a decent game if you've never played the series before. An in-depth franchise mode lets players control just about everything they can think of, from recruiting to training to the on-field lineup. There are even 90 minor league teams and 20 minor league stadiums available for additional time consumption.

While most new additions, such as base-running controls, are very minor, the new pitching interface is a definite upgrade over past iterations. Dubbed Total Pitch Control, the new system tasks players with tracing the on-screen pitcher's movements with the right analog stick. It can be frustrating at first, but after a while it becomes intuitive and offers unparalleled ball control.

With few players moving around simultaneously, it's amazing that the frame rate is still so inconsistent. Even when the camera pans from a player to the field there are noticeable stutters. It also doesn't help that character models are hardly recognizable and suffer from poor collision detection.

"MLB 2K8" doesn't knock the ball out of the park, but it does provide semi-realistic MLB action. Think rental.

10 Minutes with Renee Zellweger

Although her marriage to singer Kenny Chesney lasted only a few months, Renee Zellweger's knack for charming superstar guys is rivaled only by her good looks and exceptional talents. Zellweger "completed" Tom Cruise in "Jerry Maguire," and she went steady in real life with Jim Carrey and George Clooney. In fact, she and Clooney remain such close friends that even years after they broke up, Clooney cast her in his new film, "Leatherheads."

A quick-witted romantic comedy set in the world of 1920s football, "Leatherheads" stars Clooney as a player for the Duluth Bulldogs, a team on the brink of bankruptcy. Zellweger co-stars as a tough reporter who digs into the secret past of the team's new star, played by John Krasinski.

For years, Texas-born Zellweger felt like an intruder in Hollywood, even after winning the Best Supporting Actress Oscar for "Cold Mountain." Finally at 38, Zellweger is reaching the point where she can look back at her journey to the top and acknowledge that it was not completely accidental.

Are you comfortable being so sassy and quick opposite George Clooney?

You know, to walk in and be working with your friend, and to be so desperate to not be the person who lets him down, is terrifying. To walk in there and not have your legs beneath you, and have to be that quick-witted, funny, sharp, confident woman, it was an interesting exercise.

You have done so well with period pieces. Why is that? Is there something that you have always loved about those times?

Oh, I don't know! It might have something to do with an appreciation for the opportunity to escape. And I've always found in my personal experience that the further removed my reality is from that of the character, the more I enjoy it and the easier it is for me to disappear into her life. So maybe that has something to do with it. I have a lot of fun with it, I'm sure that probably pays a big part of it. I have such a good time in the period pieces. I like the transformation. I have a harder time playing the girl who kind of looks a little bit like me and might have a piece of clothing similar to what's in my own wardrobe, than I do wearing a girdle or a corset or in this case, little flapper dresses and hats and scarves.

You have worked with quite a list of great leading men, including Tom Cruise and Russell Crowe. Where do George Clooney and John Krasinski stand, in your book?

(Laughs.) It's quite a gorgeous box of gems, isn't it? I know, I look back on that and I think, that is ridiculous! That's ridiculous! I mean, more than the experiences that I've had or the places I've gone or the things I've learned, look at the folks. That's a nice collection of people to know. I'm really, really lucky in that respect. They're prized. And I cherish these two people, one for a long time coming and will for keeps, and the other newly so. I have so much respect for John Krasinski. As you get to know him, and I know that you will over the many years that his career will span, he's a very special person, uniquely kind and very intelligent and funny. He's a good, good man.

It's quite a gorgeous box of gems, isn't it?

You have called yourself an accidental actress. When did you start thinking you were getting good at it?

Oh, God! When does that happen? Yeah that, I can assure you, is not part of my reality at this juncture. I'm aspiring to achieve that, at some point. I'm able to recognize now that it's not all just luck, that I do work pretty hard. I do my homework and I am pretty committed to my responsibilities, and I love it. But no, I don't think that ever happens, and that's probably a good thing.

But you do have that little gold statue at home, which means you achieved something that was recognized by other people in your business, other actors.

You know, I don't connect with it in that respect. And I don't know why, because I can look at other people's experience with that sort of accolade, and historically I can look at it within its context with other people, but I can't make that connection with myself. I don't see it and feel like, "See? I'm part of that legacy, of that wonderful bit of Hollywood history. It belongs to me." I don't see it that way, and I don't know what that is but I think it's called impostor syndrome. Maybe I would feel differently if I hadn't had the experience.

What is the one film genre or one role that you have not played yet, that you would love to try? Is there one that is still burning inside you?

I don't know. I think so, but I won't talk about it because maybe it will happen, maybe it won't. But in terms of genre, I'm not sure what it would be. It might not have anything to do with this profession. It might not be a character in a film.

Hot Wine Trends

In just the past five years, the wine world has changed dramatically. It seems like every day there is another "critter" wine popping up, a different mechanism with which to open your wine (besides the Rabbit!), a new varietal that has been created in a lab at UC Davis, or just another wild way of packaging wine all together. It's vast and seems never-ending when it comes to the fads of the wine industry. There are few which really stick for longer than one vintage. Those that do have a longer lasting impact create a trend, and these are the latest. Box wine—this trend is what the wine snobs usually call sacreligious! The Pros: when it comes to the "green" movement concerning planet earth, boxes sure do seem like a much better choice than glass. Box wines have a bag inside which deflates as it empties and therefore the oxygen cannot get into the remaining wine. This allows the wine to stay good for a few weeks when refrigerated and is great for parties, value oriented and biodegradable! Cons: If you did not ever enjoy juice from a box as a child, you likely will find the thought of wine in a box repulsive. Since we are talking about "green living," let's get to the next trend: Green vineyards. This seems to be the hottest trend to date. While just five years ago most people thought that organic food or beverage of any sort was bland or stripped of something, now people are more educated about the fact that organic simply means you are not digesting all the additives (sulfur dioxide, pesticides, etc.). It has zero to do with the taste—in fact, everything organic to me tastes even better since I am not polluting my body with extra crap. I do quite enough of that on my own, thank you. Biodynamic and sustainable farming also fall under this category. Overall, these natural ways to produce wines are great for the environment, and really showcase a wine at its purist form, without all the other stuff covering it up. Pros: All of Mother Nature's goodness! Cons: Well, there are really none, unless you're Dr. Evil!
